PROBLEM - Power washing or pressure washing is the use of high pressure water to remove contaminants from a surface. It will produce enough pressure to cause significant damage to any surface including concrete, stone and brick. High pressure power washing machines, even small electric power washers, can cause serious, irreversible damage when not used properly. Pressure Washing and Power Washing can and will damage soft surfaces such as vinyl, paint, wood, and shingles if not done correctly.

SOLUTION - Specialized Accessories & Techniques have been developed to create what is called Soft Washing or Soft Wash. This involves the use of a variety of cleaning solutions to lift and remove the contaminants from siding, roofing and paving materials. The process consists of applying a cleaning solution & then rinsing away the unwanted material while using only LOW PRESSURE. The low pressure is similar to that of a garden hose.

SOFT WASHING is safe for use on dryvit, EIFS, stucco, vinyl, aluminum, wood and just about every other siding material. Trex and other synthetic or semi-synthetic decking materials clean up incredibly well with our process. Black streaks or black roof stains don't stand a chance against a good soft wash.

Fire Safety

1. Install smoke alarms on every level of your home, inside bedrooms and outside sleeping areas.
2. Test smoke alarms every month and replace batteries at least once a year.
3. Have a family fire escape plan and practice the plan twice a year.
4. If there is a fire in your home, get out, dial 911 and DO NOT go back inside.
5. Keep matches and lighters out of reach of children.
6. Use flashlights during power outages, not candles.
7. Never leave a burning candle unattended.
8. Turn off space heaters when you leave the room and DO NOT leave them unattended.
9. Only use smoking materials outside.
10. Keep flammable items away from anything that can get hot.

- Debris and brush under 6" in diameter
- Leaves

Vehicle Items

- Lead-acid vehicle batteries
- Tires
- Used oil filters
- Waste oils

Appliances

- Air conditioners
- Boilers
- Clothes dryers
- Clothes washers
- Dehumidifiers
- Dishwashers
- Freezers
- Furnaces
- Microwaves
- Ovens
- Refrigerators
- Stoves
- Water heaters

Electronics

- Cell phones
- Computers – desktop, laptop, netbook, tablet, etc.
- Computer monitors
- Computer keyboards and mice
- Computer scanners
- Computer speakers
- Desktop printers (including those that fax and scan)
- DVD players, VCRs, DVRs and all other video players
- External hard drives
- Fax machines
- Flash drives/USBs
- Other items that plug into a computer
- Televisions

Why not ban more materials?

Corrugated cardboard is banned while waxed cardboard is not. Some things with plugs, like computers, are banned, while others, like toasters, are not. Why? Current bans cover some of the most easily reusable or most toxic materials on the market today. Eventually more items may be added to this list as new recycling markets develop or the types of materials we throw away change.

Family Disaster Preparedness

Planning what to do before disaster strikes is the best protection for you and your family.

1. Know your risks.
 - What are the hazards where you live or work? Find out what natural or human caused disasters pose a risk for you.
 - Does your neighborhood or community have a disaster plan?
2. Create a family disaster plan.
 - Your family needs a plan that tells everyone: where to meet and who to identify (Emergency Responders or Family).
 - How to get emergency information for your community.
 - How to take care of your family pets.
3. Practice your disaster plan.
 - Start by having family members meet outside at a designated spot like you would after a fire.
 - Talk about which disasters you should stay indoors during, which require you to exit your home, and what disasters you may need to evacuate your community.
 - If your family needs to evacuate, know the proper evacuation procedures and routes.
4. Learn CPR and first aid.
 - Visit www.redcross.org to learn more about how and where to get trained.

5. Build a disaster kit for your home.

What is Radon?

Radon is a naturally occurring, odorless, tasteless, colorless radioactive gas that causes lung cancer. Uranium in rock, soil and water naturally decays and gives off radon. 5-10% of the homes in Wisconsin have radon levels above the US EPA guideline of 4 pCi/L for the year average on the main floor. Every region of Wisconsin has some homes with radon levels higher than this guideline.

Because radon is a gas, radon moves through soil and structures to the water below the ground surface and to the air above. Homes and buildings can trap air that has radon and cause a health concern. Dust particles with radon can be breathed in; these radioactive particles cling to lung tissue and decay there. The lung damage caused can lead to lung cancer.

How to test for Radon?

Step 1. Purchase your Radon test from your area Radon Information Center or local hardware store.

Step 2. Your first radon measurement should be made for a minimum of two days in the lowest lived-in level of your home with the windows kept closed, as recommended by the US EPA.

Step 3. Review your results to determine if a follow up test is needed.

Understanding your Results

If your first test is:

Less than 4 pCi/L	No follow-up is needed as your home has low radon levels. Test the home again after any air sealing work, heating/air conditioning system changes, or foundation modification.
Between 4-7 pCi/L	Do a long-term test to determine your average radon exposure. However, you can conduct a short-term test if quicker results is desired. Call 1-888-569-7236 to get more information about long-term testing. Radon levels may change with seasons and are low when windows are open. The average radon level in occupied floors of your home determines your lung cancer risk from radon exposure.
8 pCi/L and above	Do a follow-up short-term test immediately. If the average of the two results is greater than 4 pCi/L, you should consider fixing your home. The higher your short-term test results, the more certain it is that you should fix your home.
